

ABSTRACT

A method for switching over between at least two operating modes of a processor unit, having at least two execution units is provided, in which method a change from a first operating 5 mode to a second operating mode is triggered by the processor unit accessing a predefined memory address.